

LEARN HAND ENGRAVING

Hand Engraving: Basic Principles

In this hands-on practical course you will learn from highly skilled professionals. The course, provided by the Hand Engravers Association of Great Britain, is aimed at all skill levels, from complete novices, to improvers, to practiced metalsmiths wishing to hone a particular engraving skill.

Aims of the Courses

- For beginners, the aims will be to develop a sound basic understanding of the tools, techniques and materials used in hand engraving, on which to progressively build skills and knowledge.
- For improvers and professionals, the objective will be to develop your skills under the guidance of an experienced tutor, with the aim of honing those areas that you think need improving, and adding new skills to your repertoire.

Basic Techniques Covered

- The setting up, sharpening and polishing of appropriate tools
- Holding devices and methods
- Marking out and transferring techniques
- The cutting of metal, with exploration of combined techniques
- Production of samples from a supplied master
- Methods of erasure
- Finishing techniques
- Health & safety issues

Engraving Aspects

- Lettering
- Pictorial engraving
- Applications of engraving as a decorative element in jewellery making
- Heraldic work

Format

- A block of six evening classes 6pm-9pm or three consecutive days 10am-6pm

This course will be specifically tailored to the needs and levels of its participants. What we cover will depend on what you tell us about your background, and what you hope to gain.

Tutors:

Wayne Parrott is a highly respected and experienced engraver and teacher. He also runs his own workshop covering a wide range of skills within the subject, including calligraphy, heraldry, and his specialist interest – hand cut seals. Wayne is one of just three engravers who have won the prestigious Hand Engravers Association Lifetime Achievement Award for his services to engraving and passing on skills.

Angus McFadyen is a professional silversmith and engraver with over 25 years of experience producing tableware and working to commission. The majority of Angus's work is surface decorated with low relief pictorial engraving, often with gold or silver inlays. In recent years Angus has specialised in clock and watch engraving. Angus is an experienced workshop leader, having taught at the Goldsmiths' Centre and for the Creative Dimension Trust.
