

LEARN HAND ENGRAVING

Hand Engraving: Focus on Lettering

In this hands-on practical one day workshop you will learn from a highly skilled professional engraver. The course, provided by the Hand Engravers Association of Great Britain, is aimed at improvers and those with experience of the craft.

Aims of the one-day workshop

This will be an introduction into engraving lettering, singular, eg. initials, or text for inscriptions. This is for students who have had some previous experience with engraving and will have some basic skills, and samples of their engraving.

Basic Techniques Covered

We will cover mainly two styles, a form of roman and script. The first is very blockish then the other a more cursive style as a contrast. Students who have a natural inclination to be able to draw will find it invaluable. Also we will show how the engraving can be repeated over and over from a master sample.

Format

- The course will run for one day 9.30am-5pm
- It is taught by a professional engraver, to a maximum class size of 8 students
- Students will learn through watching demonstrations by the course tutor and trying engraving for themselves, on copper supplied by the tutor
- Students should bring their own square graver, scorper (if possible), scriber, pencil and dividers. Any other equipment will be supplied by the tutors

Tutor:

Sarah Hobbs is a professional engraver at J J Bergin Ltd, an engraving firm established in 1894. She is experienced in all aspects of hand engraving but with her previous career in fine art and sign writing, has an affinity for engraving lettering. Sarah started at JJ Bergin over three years ago as an apprentice and now works full time, completing client commissions.

Sarah has taught for the Hand Engravers Association before and is excited to be coming back to London for this special one day focus course.
